SUBJECT: Informal Questioning by the House Select Committee

On August 22, 1975 I was informally interviewed in the Rayburn Building by Emily Sceketoff of the House Select Committee.

Miss Sceketoff basically questioned me about the nature of my duties on the NSC staff, what my boss does on the staff, the procedure of working papers handled by my office, names of anyone who I know to be detailed from the CIA to the NSC Staff, if I knew of any phone tapping being done on the NSC staff, if I or my boss had any contacts with the CIA, and a few other questions which seem even less relevant than some listed above. The interview lasted about 30 minutes.

Several detailees from the CIA assigned to the NSC Staff had been questioned prior to my interview. I wanted to have natural responses to the House Select Committee's questions, so I chose not to talk to the girls who had been previously interviewed about the nature of their interviews.

I feel that I answered all questions honestly, I did not answer any substantive questions (I was accompanied by [REDACTED] CIA; and Jeanne Davis, NSC, who were watchful for such questioning), and I did not volunteer any additional information or opinions beyond a satisfactory answer to the House Select Committee's questions.
